Dear Members and Friends

Welcome to my August newsletter I can't believe that we are still in the middle of a heat wave and I do hope that none of our members have been affected by the high temperatures of late.

Our July meeting proved to be a success even though we were in opposition to the world cup, I feel as if it was 1 all, the club versus the world cup well done to all those who turned up, and I would like to thank Karen who chaired the get together, a good discussion took place and I feel that we all learnt some important information we received from Karen.

This is an apology from me to all of the group committee as I have not been able to call a committee meeting this month due to my dear wife and her health problems which have returned putting me in a position of not being able to leave alone for any period of time, for that reason I am sorry to let you down.

I would like to appeal on behalf of my dear friend Durham who is finding it hard to fill the second page of his monthly newsletter so I am asking him to not bother worrying and getting stressed about it, so please continue being the editor of our much needed newsletter.

I have made a provisional booking to take my wife away for a couple of weeks in September her health permitting so I will need the committee to be in charge at the September meeting have a good one. Our dear Evelyn could not make the July meeting due to ill health so on behalf of us all please get well. I would like to thank Peter, Janet, June, and Silvia, and Karen for their assistance on the night. .

I look forward in seeing you all at the August meeting I send you all my best wishes and as always god bless.

Regards

Henry Phillips Chairman

The Dinner Party.

Although a relatively minor poet himself, English clergyman the Reverend William Lisle Bowles counted among his friends such eminent poets as Samuel Taylor Coleridge and William Wordsworth. Perhaps one of the reasons why Bowles never scaled greater heights was because he had a memory like a sieve.

One evening, he invited his friends to a dinner party but failed to appear. Finally his wife went upstairs to see what was keeping him and found him searching all over his room for a stocking. After hunting high and low for the missing garment, Mrs Bowles discovered that her husband had put two stockings on one foot while his mind was preoccupied with his latest poem.

Bowles daily journey to work through a turnpike gate at which he was required to pay two pence in order to allow his horse through. One day he passed through the gate on foot but still offered the gatekeeper the toll money.
What `s that for? Inquired the gatekeeper.
For my horse, of course answered Bowles.
But, sir, you have no horse today.
Oh, said a surprised Bowles. Am I walking?

Where There's A Will.

An English firm of solicitors revealed in 2010 that the distribution of a man's will was delayed because he had suffered a senior moment while composing it. When Leslie Fawdon drafted his will, he left half his estate to his nephew whom he named as Mark Parkinson. Unfortunately he had no nephew of that name, but he did have a great-nephew named Justin Parkinson. Furthermore, no one of by the name of Mark Parkinson had ever lived at the address mentioned in the will. A court eventually decided that Mr Fawdon had intended to benefit his great-nephew and award him half-share in the estate.

Forty Plus.

Life begins at forty-but so do fallen arches,
Rheumatism, faulty eyesight, and the tendency to tell a story to the same person three or four times.
